QUESTION 3

(15 Marks)

Humanistic psychology, often called third-force psychology, emerged in the 1960s as a reaction against the limitations of mainstream psychological theories of the time, which often ignored the uniquely human elements of personality, such as feelings of hope and the pursuit of meaning. It emphasizes understanding the whole person and stresses concepts like free will and the potential for personal growth.

- a) State the differences between humanistic psychology and behaviourism. (5 marks)
- b) Explain what each level of Abraham Maslow's Hierarchy of Needs represents and why Maslow believes it is important to fulfil lower needs before addressing higher needs. (10 marks)

SOALAN 3

(15 Markah)

Psikologi humanistik, sering disebut sebagai psikologi kekuatan ketiga, muncul pada tahun 1960-an sebagai reaksi terhadap batasan teori psikologi arus perdana pada masa itu, yang sering mengabaikan elemen-elemen manusia yang unik dalam personaliti, seperti perasaan harapan dan usaha mencari makna. Ia menekankan pemahaman terhadap individu secara keseluruhan dan menegaskan konsep seperti kehendak bebas dan potensi untuk pertumbuhan peribadi.

- a) Nyatakan perbezaaan psikologi humanistik dan behaviorisme. (5 markah)
- b) Jelaskan apa yang setiap Hierarki Keperluan Abraham Maslow wakili dan mengapa Maslow percaya adalah penting untuk memenuhi keperluan yang lebih rendah sebelum menangani keperluan yang lebih tinggi. (10 markah)
